

Time Peels All to Original White – Xueyan Poems

Time Peels All to Original White – Xueyan Poems* is a debut poetry collection of a lightning new voice that shows the epiphanic power of simplicity, reinventing popular thinking about the breadth of spirituality, and boldly addresses questions of perennial human concern. With modern settings and contemporary language, topics include the sacred and eternal, the nature of God, the existence of evil, the brutality of capitalism, the loneliness of existence, the ecstasy of intimacy, and the ubiquitous reach of love.

The collection's 139 concise and deeply spiritual poems lay bare humanity's most jarring mysteries and contradictions, exposing their raw essence with startling simplicity in a way that transcends borders, cultures, races, and beliefs.

Christianity, Buddhism and classical mythology converge alongside novel descriptions of nature and unguarded moments of everyday life in ways that profoundly affect matters of the soul, mind and heart.

Opening infinite possibilities to love and be free, Xueyan's poems are remarkably timeless, placeless. Universal.
